PAYING SAFELY ONLINE

When you go to the shopping website's checkout, you'll be asked to enter your delivery details and to choose a payment method. The three main payments methods accepted by most websites are:

Credit card.

Funds transfer from your bank account, also known as direct debit or direct deposit.

A special service called PayPal or after pay.

Some websites may accept cheques and money orders, but these options are becoming less popular

PAYING BY CREDIT CARD

Credit cards are the most common way to pay online, with most websites able to accept credit cards.

Fraud protection with credit cards is quite strong. This makes it a very good way to pay online.

When you check out and select credit card as your payment option, you'll be asked to type your credit card number and some other details. Once you've done that, the site can charge your credit card, and you'll see the charge appear in your card statement.

PAYING BY FUNDS TRANSFER

You can transfer money directly from your bank account to a website. A direct deposit lets you transfer money from your bank to an account number given to you by the website.

A direct debit lets you use a system like BPAY to transfer funds to a website. The site will give you a BPAY reference number (which is like a bill number) and a biller code (which identifies the site). You can then transfer funds to the website using your bank's phone or internet payment system

USING PAYPAL

- PayPal is a service especially designed for online purchases. Paypal acts as a 'middle man' for online payments and means that you never need to give your card details to a website.
- When you buy something, PayPal actually makes the payment on your behalf. You then pay back PayPal using a credit card or your bank account. Paypal also offers buyer protection and will help you get your money back if there is a problem with the goods.
- PayPal means you don't have to provide your credit card number to a shopping website. It can stay private. This is useful if you aren't sure you can trust a website or you buy goods from many different websites.
- To use PayPal, you have to first create an account with PayPal. You can do that by going to <https://www.paypal.com>.

BUYING FROM A WEBSITE YOU'RE NOT 100% SURE ABOUT

- If you are buying from a website you've never dealt with before, it's best to use credit card, or even better, PayPal.
- Credit cards and PayPal have a special kind of buyer protection, where you may receive a refund if things go wrong. Even if the website refuses to give you a refund, your credit card company or PayPal may still reverse the charges. That way, there's less risk for you.
